This topographic map depicts the Groscavallo region, characterized by a complex network of mountain ridges and valleys. The terrain is shaded in various tones of brown and tan to represent different elevations. A prominent river system, likely the Adige, is shown flowing through the lower right portion of the map. Several settlements are marked with red dots and labeled in Italian: 'Geresole Reale' is located in the upper right, 'Groscavallo' is in the center-right, and 'Balme' is at the bottom center. The map is framed by a double-line border, with the outer line being thicker. Grid lines are visible, with labels such as '413NE', '413SE', '412N', '412S', '554NE', and '551NO' indicating specific coordinates or grid intersections. The overall orientation is with North at the top.
